CHAPTER XIII.
A LESSON IN POLITICS.

Within five minutes we had surprise, for the sheriff and Edwin came back, and the former announced that Fred and Lew were free, having been released. When we found that Camp had got the bond, I knew that there was some scheme of some sort in the moving. Fred aside, I warned Edwin to try to restrain the press. "They probably will find out one or two of you knows where the are hidden," I whispered, "and keep a watch on you, so go slow."

He nodded and followed the Suffered 20 Years.

MRS. MARY LEWIS, wife of a prominent farmer, and well known by all old residents near Belmont, N. Y., said: "For twenty-seven years I had been a constant sufferer from nervous prostration and paid large sums of money for doctor and advertised remedies without benefit. Three years ago my condition was aggravated; the least noise would startle and wake me. I was unable to sleep, had a series of sinking spells and slowly grew weaker. I began using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills. At first the medicine seemed to have no effect, but after taking a few bottles I began to notice improvement; I rested better at night, my appetite began to improve and I rapidly grew stronger until now I am as nearly restored to health as one of my age may expect. God bless Dr. Miles' Nervine."

THE GREAT K&A TRAIN ROBBERY.

CHAPTER XIII.

With a few minutes we had a big surprise for the sheriff and Mr. Baldwin. The former announced that Fred and Lord Ralles were having been released on bail. When I heard that Camp had gone on the train I knew that there was a chance of some sort in the move, and, taking Fred aside, I warned him against trying to leave the proxies.

"I don't think that one or the other of you knows where the letters are hidden," I whispered, "and they'll keep a watch on you, so go slow."

He nodded and followed the sheriff and Lord Ralles out.

The moment they were gone Mr. Baldwin said, "I came back to give you a last chance."

"That's very good of you," I said.

"I warn you," he said threateningly, "we are not men to be beaten. There are 20 cowboys of mine in this town who think you were concerned in the killing up. By merely tipping them the wink they'll have you out of this, and even if they've got you outside I won't give the toss of a nickel for your life. Now, then, will you hand over these letters or will you go to inside of ten minutes?"

I lost my temper in turn. "I'd much prefer going to some place where I was less sure of meeting you," I retorted, "and as for the cowboys, you'll have to be as tricky with them as you want to be with me before you'll get them to back you up in your dirty work."

At this point the sheriff called back to Lord Baldwin if he was coming.

"All right," cried Baldwin and went to the door. "This is the last call," he said, pausing for a moment on the threshold.

"I hope so," said I more calmly in manner than in feeling. I have to acknowledge, for I didn't like the look of things. That they were in earnest I felt pretty certain, for I understood now why they had let my companions out of jail. They didn't care to risk hanging more than was necessary.

A long time seemed to pass after they were gone, but in reality it wasn't more than 15 minutes before I heard some one steal up and softly unlock the door. I confess the evident endeavor to do it quietly gave me a scare, for I feared to me it couldn't be an above board movement. Thinking this, I picked up the box on which I had been sitting and prepared to make the best fight I could. It was a good deal of relief, therefore, when the door opened just wide enough for a man to put in his head, and I heard the sheriff's voice say softly:

"Hi, Gordon!"

I was at the door in an instant and said:

"What's up?"

"They're getting the boys together and say that you shot a woman in the hold."

"It's an infernal lie," I said.

"Sounds that way to me," said the sheriff, "but two-thirds of the boys are drunk, and it's a long time since they've had any fun."

"Well," I said, as calmly as I could, "are you going to stand by me?"

"I would, Mr. Gordon," he replied, "if there was any good, but there ain't time to get a posse, and what's one Winchester against a mob of cowboys like that?"

"If you'll lend me your gun," I said, "I'll show just what it is worth without troubling you."

"I'll do better than that," said the sheriff, "and that's what I'm here for. Just sneak while the time is."

"You mean?" I exclaimed.

"That's it. I'm going away, and I'll leave the door unlocked. If you get away, let me know your address, and when I want you, I'll send you word." He took a grip on my fingers that numbed them as if they had been caught in an airbrake and disappeared.

I stepped out after the sheriff without loss of time. That there wasn't much to spare was shown by a crowd with some torches down the street, collected in front of a saloon. They were making a good deal of noise, even for the west. Evidently the flame was being fanned.

Not wasting time, I struck for the rail track, because I knew the geography of that track, but still more because I wanted to get to the station. It was a big risk to go there, but it was one I was willing to take for the object I had in view, and since I had to take it, it was best to get through with the job before the discovery was made that I was no longer in jail.

It didn't take me three minutes to reach the station. The whole place was dark as a coal dumper, except for the glows of light which shone through the cracks of the contained windows in the station, the dim light of the lamp in the station and the glow of the row of lanterns 200 feet away. I was afraid, however, that there might be a spy

TEN YEARS YOUNGER.

A Happy Husband's Story.

"My wife," writes a fond husband, "looks ten years younger since she began to take Dr. Greene's Nervura. She was in a terrible condition. She began to be nervous several years ago. I did not notice it at first, but she gradually grew worse. After a little she could not sleep. She lost her appetite, and from the sweetest and best tempered woman in the world she became shrewish and hysterical. Finally she began to fade away. You know there is a difference between women who grow old naturally and women who fade out from the effects of disease. I think I am as devoted and patient as any husband, but I must confess that my wife's unfortunate condition was a sore trial. I do not know what would have become of me if things had gone on as they were. The change for the better came suddenly. There was a complete transformation within a few days. Sound sleep and a hearty appetite came as nervousness and irritability went. I did not know what the matter was until she told me that she had been impressed by the sincerity and common sense of Dr. Greene's advertisements, and had been taking his Nervura. From misery and despondency she is now the happiest person in the world, with the possible exception of myself."

Dr. Greene's Nervura,

THE GREAT BLOOD AND NERVE REMEDY,

Is the great health restorer. To suffering womanhood it is a priceless blessing. How sad is the sight of a fading woman! Who has not seen the sparkling eyes lose their lustre, the roses and lilies fade from the cheeks, and elasticity of step and gracefulness of figure give way to repulsive haggardness! With departing beauty go sweetness of temper and charm of speech, and nothing is left of the sufferer but the ghastly contrast with her former self. The world would be gloomy indeed were there no light in this dark picture. Nature is forgiving. In Dr. Greene's Nervura she has found a means by which women may regain their lost health and beauty, and assume their rightful positions in the spheres in which they move, as both ornaments and inspirations.

Dr. Greene's Nervura acts directly upon the nerves and blood, which are the life. Exhaustion, irritability and moroseness are banished, and the circulation strengthened and purified. Like a mountain stream, Dr. Greene's Nervura is most happy when relieving the miseries of others, and if you feel the need of a wise counselor, do not hesitate to call on or write to him. His advice is none the less valuable because it is free. Dr. Greene's office is at 24 Temple Place, Boston, Mass.

G. A. R. Camp-Fire.

The camp-fire of last Thursday of the G. A. R. Boys was very successful as to numbers in attendance. Early in the forenoon comrades from other Posts began to assemble with their lady friends so that at dinner time it was very thickly settled in the vicinity of G. A. R. Hall, where a bountiful dinner had been provided by the W. R. C. of Norway. Tables were set to accommodate seventy-five and they resat them three times before all had been fed. It was estimated there were three hundred ate and were satisfied.

After dinner it was found that the G. A. R. Hall was not large enough to accommodate all and they repaired to Norway Hall, where the exercises of the afternoon were held. The exercises consisted of songs and stories by the Boys in Blue and the time was interestingly spent and enjoyed by all. Comrade Noble was master of ceremonies. The singing was by the Noble Boys and Bartlett Boys. Speaking was mostly by comrades from other Posts—Bridgton, Harrison, Edes' Falls, Oxford, Paris, Mechanic Falls and Poland.

Notice was given out that W. K. Kimball Post would have a camp-fire in three weeks from that day, Nov. 4th, and invitation extended to all members of G. A. R. and W. R. C. to be present at that time.

"For five weeks I lived on cold water, so to speak," writes a man who suffered terribly from indigestion. He could hardly keep anything on his stomach. What stayed wasn't properly digested and gave him terrible pains. This is not an uncommon case. Dyspeptics don't get enough nourishment. They are generally thin and weak. They may eat enough, but they don't digest enough. Much of what they eat turns into poison. If this keeps on there's no telling what disease they may get next.

That's why it is best to take Shaker Digestive Cordial, as soon as symptoms of indigestion appear.

It cures all the evils of indigestion, and prevents the evils which indigestion causes.

Sold by druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 per bottle.

The first Thanksgiving dinner was celebrated in this country two hundred and seventy-six years ago at Plymouth, Massachusetts. The whole American army was present. It numbered twenty men. Miles Standish, the backward lover of Priscilla, sat at the feast, while Priscilla served at the tables. The story will appear in the November issue of The Ladies' Home Journal.

Friday afternoon, Miss Adaline Chesley of Hebron, whose age is about seventy, was driving alone toward home and reached the crossing on the P. & N. R. R. near the old Advent camp ground about express train time, the horse stopped on the crossing suddenly and the incoming train hit the team, killing the horse, making kindling wood of the wagon and seriously injuring Miss Chesley. She was removed to her home in Hebron.

Happiness.

Some people look for happiness a great way off, and don't expect to reach it until they pass through the red sea of tribulation, and get into heaven. They go through life with a sad eye turned towards the New Jerusalem—hoping a little but doubting much about their ability to get there after all. Others look for happiness at their very doors. Their way is full of sunshine, half reflected and half created. The manna falls every morning from heaven to satisfy their happy natures. God's vineyard is marvelously rich in its adaptability and universality.

One can play almost any tune he desires on the manifold lyres in the social and material world. Every man is the author of his own happiness as he is of his own fortune. If he is a good spiritual swimmer he can ride easily the turbulent waves of tribulation and misfortune. With infinite faith in every man's right to a reasonable share of the blessings of this life, and an unselfish determination to grant every man a right of way in life, no man will suffer for lack of means or friendship.

the ghastly terror of consumption stares a man in the face who neglects a cold.

The annual election of the officers of the Northern Oxford Fair at Andover occurred, last Tuesday—
President, Geo. O. Hussey.
Vice-President, C. F. Poor.
Secretary, John F. Talbot.
Treasurer, Lewis C. Akers.
Trustees, J. Holton Abbott, R. L. Metcalf, J. F. Caldwell, C. T. Poor, H. L. Poor.

Cabot Lodge, K. of P., will be instituted at Andover on Friday evening of this week by the grand officers. Fifty-two names appear on the roll of charter members. The first rank will be conferred by Pennesseswasse Lodge of Norway, the second by Metelluc of Rumford Falls, and the third by Hamlin of South Paris.

There is one thing sure—As long as the Maine woods are full of visiting hunters (many of whom we might add never saw a deer, or a bear, or other game in its wild state, and can't tell them from a human being,) it is not safe for the Maine people to go into the woods, hardly out of doors. If this state of affairs continues and the out of the state sportsmen don't learn how to use firearms the inhabitants of Maine will be obliged to build for themselves block-houses, as in the days of our forefathers. During the months of September and October they can all gather in these places of safety, and perhaps the greater number may be able to save their lives.

The Political Pot.
The sheriff's position in this county will probably be the greatest bone of contention in next year's ante-convention campaign.
Sheriff Porter's friends say that he has a fine record and deserves a third term.

There are some friends of jailer Chandler Garland who are making a quiet canvass in his behalf.
Deputies R. A. Barrows of Canton and Edgar L. Flint of Hiram don't seem to be very prominent candidates just now. Mr. Flint indeed has definitely withdrawn.

Deputy George G. Shibley of Fryeburg is in the hands of his friends, and will probably put forth considerable effort toward that object.
State Detective Albert P. Bassett of Norway will be one of the liveliest candidates. He has a large following and sets up a strong claim on the grounds of industry and courage.

BROWNFIELD.
Mrs. Hannah Floyd has moved to Portland to live with her daughter, Mrs. Crossman.
Mrs. David S. Bean has returned from an extended visit to friends in New Hampshire.

Mrs. Wilbur Quint of Portland is visiting at the old home of Mrs. Quint's father, J. C. Quint.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Rowe of Brownfield have just returned from an eight weeks' outing in Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts. They have, in all, driven their team 700 miles, passing through about 80 towns and villages and visited some 25 families of relatives.
Mrs. Abigail Quint, aged 91 years and 22 days, died in Brownfield, Oct. 14th. Mrs. Quint was the daughter of Elisha and Margaret Morrill Cotton. She was born in Cornish, Sept. 22, 1806, came to Brownfield with her father's family when about 12 years of age, has lived here ever since, except a few years spent in Baldwin. She was twice married, first to Amos Burnell, who died in Baldwin in 1855; second to Josiah Quint, who has been dead 15 years. Since the death of the second husband, her home has been with her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Marston, where she has been most tenderly and kindly cared for. Two children survive her, Mrs. Marston and Elisha Burnell of the village. One son, Amos Burnell, died in the army during the late war.

Mrs. Peter McAllister passed away, Monday morning, after a lingering illness of some weeks. She had been in poor health for a number of years, and was a husband and two sons to mourn their loss; also two girls whom she brought up from infancy, one being a granddaughter, with whom she lived at the time of her death. To both of them she performed a mother's part and will be sadly missed by them. She was formerly a member of the Stoneham Christian church.

Mrs. Pinkham Tells How Women May Avoid Painful Examinations.

To a modest, sensitive, high-strung young woman, especially an unmarried woman, there is no more trying or painful ordeal than the "examinations," which are now so common in hospitals and private practice.

An examination by speculum, or otherwise, is sometimes a positive necessity in certain stages of many diseases peculiar to women; so at least it is declared by the profession. This would not be the case if patients heeded their symptoms in time.

If a young girl's blood is watery, her skin pale and waxy looking, her lips colorless, bowels torpid, digestion poor, her ears and temples throbbing and her head begins at once to build up her system with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Do not allow her to undergo a physical examination.

Here is a letter from a young lady who requests that her name should not be used, but gives her initials and street number so that any inquiry addressed to her will be received. She says:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—It affords me great pleasure to be able to say a few words in regard to the merits of your Vegetable Compound. I was tempted to try it after seeing the effects of it upon my mother, and now I feel like a new person. I am a stenographer and was troubled with falling of the womb and female weakness in general. I continued to work until I was so weak I could no longer walk, and the last day I was forced to stop and rest."

"I was then so ill that I was compelled to stay in bed, and so nervous that I could not hold anything in my hands. The least noise or surprise would cause my heart to beat so loudly, and I would become so weak that I could hardly stand. I suffered for almost a year. It is different now. I can go about my work with pleasure, while before, work was a drudge. "Trusting that my words of praise may help some other afflicted person, and be of benefit to womanhood in general, I remain, Yours in gratitude, L. H., 444 S. East St., Indianapolis, Ind."

He was at once started for home. He was able to ride out as far as Fuller's on first B Hill in Upton, when he became so faint from loss of blood that it was found he would have to be carried on a stretcher. Plenty of men was soon found willing to help and for 13 miles he was carried by the men, reaching his home about half past eight in the evening. Three physicians had been summoned and found that the charge of shot had gone through his arm above the elbow being out about an inch of the bone. The two ends were brought together and wired and it is hoped that the arm will be saved. A trained nurse from Portland is taking care of him and at the present time he is as comfortable as could be expected.
